COLLISION WITH AUTO INJURES DALY CITY POLICE OFFICER

Motorcycle Tangles With Car While Chasing Speeder Near High School.

Ricco Benedetti, motorcycle officer of the Daly City Police Department, was seriously injured last Saturday when his machine collided with an automobile at School and Mission streets. He sustained a broken leg and arm. He is reported progressing favorably at the Junipero Serra Hospital.

The accident occurred while the officer was chasing a speeding machine going south on Mission street.

As he was approaching School street an automobile driven by Duncan M. Anway, 28, of Willits street was making a left turn out of that thoroughfare. The impact was terrific, causing the motorcycle to recoil and swerve violently, throwing the officer to the pavement. From all accounts obtainable, the accident was unavoidable.

DOLLING UP DALY CITY

Building and remodeling is going on apace in Daly City at present. In all sectons of the city you can see the mark of improvement, and improvements mean better business.

Showing their confidence in the new set-up in the city administration, citzens are expending sums of money in the erection of new buildings, the remodeling of store fronts, painting up and alterations.

From the county line all along Mission street various business houses have had new fronts installed and the interiors remodeled and redecorated. A number of new buildings have also been constructed.

What a contrast to the lack of confidence shown by the dearth of improvements in the community for quite a number of years past!

Let the good work go forward!

Growers Urged To File Application For Space As Early As Possible

The San Mateo County Products and Floral Fiesta is appealing to potential exhibitors to contact Martin Poss, general manager of the show, and apply for space immediately in the second annual affair to be staged at Bay Meadows, October 9, 10 and 11.

Headquarters at 11 B street, San Mateo, will be open all day to receive applications from exhibitors, Poss said this week.

Daly City florists and ranchers are expected to take a large portion of available floor space at the show and are also seen as potential winners of some of the $10,000 in cash awards and trophies to be given exhibitors.

Poss urged growers to file applications for space as soon as possible, as already last year's mark has been surpassed.

"Our problem now," he said, "is to find room for all exhibitors."

While 32 county finalists have been announced, it is expected that a dozen or more additional girls will be advanced by other counties of California for the honor before the rodeo opens. Cool weather will lend additional snap to the contest as hot weather in July is practically unknown in Salinas.

Twenty-one of the 32 girls live on farms, while 24 of the total have dark hair; there being but eight blondes, and only one a light blonde.

OMAHA'S DEFEAT WAS VICTORY FOR AMERICA

By J. W. MARCHBANK

I am the least provincial man in the world, but I cannot resist calling attention to some facts in regard to Quashed, winner of the Gold Cup at Royal Ascot in the closest kind of a finish with the American-owned Omaha. Quashed was bred in England and is owned in England. Her sire, Obliberate, however, is a son of the American bred Tracery.

When it comes to the dam of Quashed,the Cambridgeshire winner Verdict, there is another American angle. Verdict is a lineal descendant of that good horse, Umpire, that Richard ten Broeck took to England many years ago. There is an inclination in the "tight little isle" to bear against all American stock, but the blood of Umpire was so superlative it has survived to this day. At that, Verdict is not in the English Stud Book, but is given a place in Miss Pryor's Half Bred Book.

Quite a number of world famous writers have characterized the action of the English in more than one field as "bold." It was certainly all of that when Lord Jersey won out in his proposal to ostrasize not only many American thoroughbreds, but some English, for the specious reason all their ancestors do not trace to stallions and mares of the first volume of the English Stud Book.

William Woodward, chairman of the American Jockey Club and owner of Omaha, made a sensible suggestion some months ago that the English do the sporting thing in taking over all the names of horses enumerated in the sixteen volumes of the American Stud Book and making them "thoroughbred" in name as well as in fact, which they are. Even English critics have pointed out the injustice of shutting out many of the best horses from the pages of the English publication.

A few exceptions were made at the time of the Jersey legislation on account of the strength in the country across the water of some lines in which there was a predominance of American blood. The time has now come, as Chairman Woodward says, to make a new beginning, all starting from "scratch," as the foot racers have it.

Judge Cotton Aids Litigants

JUDGE A. R. COTTON

Superior Judge Aylett R. Cotton, whose name appears on the August Primary ballot for re-election to Department No. 2, is being hailed through legal circles of the state as the friend of struggling young attorneys.

Highly important legal matters are disposed of by this magistrate in an efficient, expedient and fair manner, but Superior Judge Cotton, nevertheless, finds time to be tolerant with young lawyers.

Superior Judge Cotton, it is cited by those in the legal profession, has been known to bring out in these young lawyers through his tolerant attitude latent qualities which have served to insure their success as lawyers.

This tolerance on the part of Superior Judge Cotton is not confined to youthful lawyers that come into his court, however.

He has always shown consideration to litigants, who, finding themselves face to face wth the awesome, puzzling procedure and formality of the law, fall upon the court's guidance for a better understanding of their respective cases.

In this manner, Superior Judge Cotton is enabled to bring about a spirit of co-operation between litigant and lawyer, the machnery of the law is allowed to proceed smoothly and a quick but fair judgement rendered.

Since he has occupied the bench, Superior Judge Cotton has applied himself to a court calendar which he inherited from his predecessors cluttered with cases of long standing. Such cases were no end of worry because of such delay to the litigants involved.

With an eye to clearing up such aged litigation, Superior Judge Cotton has delved into the background of each case, taken reasonable time for full consideration of its merits and then rendered judgment, thus bringing up to date his present court calendar.

As magistrate of the San Mateo County Juvenile Court, Superior Judge Cotton has established an enviable reputation for disposng of the cases of juvenile delinquents in a most commendable manner. His reputation in this department is state wide.

Away from the searching eyes and ears of a curious public, Superior Judge Cotton hears the juvenile cases in a special chamber at the Juvenile Home.

His leniency with youth and the constructive measures he takes in curbing their wrong doing has resulted in his receiving scores of letters from appreciative parents and guardians who express thankfulness for his just treatment of their respective cases.

This outstanding record of achievement as a Jurist of San Mateo County, say his supporters, has been recognized by members of the legal profession, litigants who have appeared in his court and the citizenry of the peninsula and will result in his return to office by an overwhelming vote.—Adv.

Speed Scare Persists

Until the coming of the railways, the greatest sustained speed ever attained by man was established by the Roman Emperor Tiberius. Using relays of chariots, he sped to his dying brother, Drusus, at the rate of 200 miles a day.

For centuries man shook his head dubiously at every new proposal to increase the speed of land travel. When the locomotive was invented it was predicted that speeds of 30 miles an hour would prove fatal to human beings. Today airplanes travel at 250 miles and more an hour. Yet there persists the same haunting fear that at some still greater speed the human system will suddenly collapse.—Washington Star.

"You were right in the beginning," Pat said. "There was only one thing to do. Father saw Kelly alive after Peg's husband left him, and we should have said so.

"I can't stand seeing Peggy," Pat continued. "Was that what you had in mind when you sent her here? Anyway, it's too terrible. She comes down to breakfast, looking—well, you know. You knew about trouble like that—all night long—alone—and I didn't. I do now, and we've got to 'come clean.'

"I don't think it matters," Barry replied. "I still think we can free Jack without that."

"How soon?"

"By next Wednesday."

Pat nodded.

"All right," she said. "We'll wait until Wednesday."

Barry had never seen her more charming.

As they walked down the beach, to rejoin the others, he asked, "Are you ever going to confess how you found out about me?"

Pat laughed.

"That was too easy. The night of Marian's visit, you told me you'd taken the name Barry Gilbert. And it had a curiously familiar sound. After a moment, I remembered that I'd once seen an actor called Barry Gilbert in a war picture."

"And then?"

"Then you shut your hand in the door. The expression of mingled surprise and pain in your face—that was what had kept the picture and the actor in my mind. You were the man who'd come out of the drinking place, laughing and talking, and been shot. I was sure of that—just as sure as I was that you'd crushed your fingers deliberately to keep us from knowing that, unlike the Jack Ridder you were supposed to be, you couldn't play a violin any more than you could play Hamlet."

"I'm glad you found out," Barry said. "I'm glad I haven't been deceiving you, at all events."

They had reached the railroad builders.

"Pat!" Jack called. "Pat! We've finished—"

"Jacky! You mustn't call Miss Hambidge 'Pat.'"

"Everybody else does."

"I like it," Patricia came to the rescue. "We're Pat and Peg to each other now; why shouldn't I be Pat to Jacky?"

It was almost a miracle, Barry decided. Was this the same girl of whom, only a couple of months ago, her father had said, "Pat, for short, though it takes courage to call her that."

The change wasn't all his doing, or Peg's. Something else had contributed to softening Pat, and making her sweeter and loveller. It was ironic, Barry felt, and bitter—that she should be the loveliest when he was losing her. What of his plan to come back for her—"Some day, when I've made good?" A girl like that might marry an ex-vagabond; she certainly couldn't marry an ex-convict.

Barry drove back to town Sunday evening without having put anybody's house in order. He had dined with the Hambidges, and gone over there in the morning "to see Jacky start for his ride."

"Well, our trial's set for two weeks from today," said Winslow when Barry called at his office Monday morning.

"I'm still hoping there won't be any trial."

"Meaning that you think you've got Mrs. Kelly?"

That was the question Barry had dreaded. Winslow's frank amusement at his "sleuthing" nettled him, and made him feel foolish. Especially now that he was compelled to admit, "No; I'm afraid you were right about Mrs. Kelly. She slept at her sister's that night."

"Well, then," Peter asked, "who's the latest candidate?"

"Do you remember reading me your cross examination of the Filipino?"

"A new notes for it—yes."

"You found a lot of holes in the boy's story?"

"Yes."

But Peter was still amused.

"Well, I've got a few more," Barry said, "and a motive."

He sat down, and Peter opposite him. Barry repeated what Evans had told him of the dinner with Nolan.

"Well," Peter remarked, at the end, "that settles the case against Rogers."

"You think so?"

"Obviously. If Nolan sticks to his story. We say Nolan's testimony establishes that the decanter was downstairs all the time Rogers was upstairs. But we've got to make the jury believe it."

"Or the district attorney."

Winslow shook his head.

"The district attorney wouldn't move for dismissal of an indictment on that evidence."

"But—"

"You're perfectly sure that the Filipino killed Kelly," Winslow went on. "I'm not. And the district attorney wouldn't be. The Filipino was angry. And the decanter was downstairs. That's all there really is to that story."

"And Kelly was alive an hour after Rogers left."

"That's what we've got to prove to the jury. My own guess is that the decanter had been carried into the dining room when the murderer entered the house."

"After Nolan went home?"

"Yes, and after the Filipino went to

"And that man—"

"You're sure it was a man?"

"Very sure. And that man was someone who had better reason than we've found yet for hating or dreading Mike Kelly."

Barry rose.

Peter had picked a glove off his desk, and was turning it right side out.

"Have you ever thought of Luis Morano?" Barry asked.

Winslow let the glove fall.

"Why?"

"He seems to have had some reason for hating Kelly."

"You mean that row in the Cocoanut Bar?" Peter said. "Oddly enough, that's why I haven't thought of Morano. He was telephoning me from the Cocoanut Bar—about the row—at the time of the murder.

"Luis always came to me when he was in trouble. And he called me, at home, just after one that morning, to say that one of his girls was in jail, and would I take the case. I could hear that jazz of his."

Barry stooped for the glove.

"Well, that's that," he remarked. "Kelly was threatening Morano, you know, and—"

But Peter was smiling again.

"You can make a case against almost anyone," he said. "But a case that'll stand up—that's another thing."

Barry grinned sheepishly.

Winslow pressed a button.

"Stop worrying," he advised Barry. "We're going to free Rogers. If we have to get the guilty man to do it, we'll get him, but let's give the court a chance first."

"I'm Glad You Found Out," Barry Said.

"I guess we'll have to," Barry conceded.

Peter's secretary opened the door.

"What's Nolan's first name?" Peter asked Barry. "And where's his garage? Got it, Miss Clark? Now, get Nolan in here this afternoon."

He looked up at Barry.

"Don't mind my joking," he said. "Something tells me you did a grand job when you turned up Mr. Nolan."

"Peter's wonderfully kind," Barry told Harwood that evening, "but he makes me feel as small as an author's name in a motion picture advertisement."

"I don't think Winslow means to make anyone feel small," Ernie answered. "He's too big for that. It's the small men who've got to make other people smaller, in self-defense. The trouble with Winslow is that he's generally right, and that's trying, no matter how kind anyone may be about it."

"Winslow's a great lawyer," he went on, "and a swell guy. He's had his own troubles, too. Ever meet his wife?"

"Once."

"He's nearly wrecked his career for her, you know. She ran away from home with some youngster in a military school. The kid turned crook, and the cops killed him. Then she married Winslow. The tabloids played the story up all over the place, and Mrs. Winslow crashed, and had to be taken to Europe. She went to pieces again two or three years ago, and Winslow closed the office, and went to live in the South of France. The money gave out, I guess. Anyway, they didn't stay long. Of course, that telephone message doesn't prove anything."

"You mean Morano's message to Winslow?"

"Yes. Luis might have sent that at one o'clock, and still've been in time for the murder."

"Is there any chance that Luis didn't send it?"

"Why do you ask that?"

"It occurs to me that Peter might be shielding someone."

"Whom? Morano?" Harwood shook his head. "Winslow isn't that kind of a lawyer. As a matter of fact, I know Morano phoned him."

"Who told you?"

"Violet Fane."

"Then you've been to the Cocoanut Bar?"

"Yes. I went Saturday, and met all your cronies. Miss Fane says Luis followed Peggy Rogers around to the police station, and then came back to the Bar, and called up his lawyer, and drove to Morristown."

"At one o'clock?"

"Yes."

"How about 'faking an alibi?'"

"You reminded me it could be done," Barry went on.

Ernie turned suddenly.

"Ever strike you as queer," he asked, "that nobody ever connected Kelly's murder with the Jefferson Street grab?"

Barry couldn't trust himself to reply.

"They were pulled off about the same time. As I remember it, Judge Hambidge's decision was handed down the day after the killing."

Barry remained silent.

"Kelly stood to make a million or two on that deal," Harwood continued. "Those Jefferson Street houses were pretty decent once. Then they went slummy. Through agents, Kelly bought 'em in, one by one, for little or nothing, and turned 'em over to a phoney corporation to sell to the city at a huge profit. Some of the original owners may have been a little bit sore, don't you think?"

The conversation was drifting into safer channels, and, relieved, Barry let it flow on.

"As a matter of fact," Harwood resumed, "someone was—very sore. He called me up, the day of the murder, and offered to squeal. He wouldn't give me his name, but he said he'd be here, at ten-thirty that night, to deliver the goods on Kelly."

"And then?"

"Then he didn't show up."

"Somebody got to him."

"Probably. And then somebody killed Kelly."

Barry asked, "Is that the clue you had in mind when you said, 'Tell Winslow I may have a tip for him some day?'"

Harwood nodded.

"Yes, but, as I remarked later, that guy who phoned might have been anybody. I didn't have a darn thing to go on except that he had a soft voice and a funny impediment in his speech."

"And then—"

"Then you told me about Morano, and I went to the Cocoanut Bar. The guy that phoned me was Morano, all right. But what does that mean? Not a thing, maybe. If Morano did hop in his car at one o'clock that night—"

He paused.

"I've got a dozen men on this trail. Now, I'm going to send somebody to Morristown. Not you. They know you. Your job is to lay low. Morano hasn't the faintest idea who I am. I told him I came from Grand Rapids. But—"

The city editor was pacing the floor.

"My God, how this picture begins fitting together," he cried. "Morano threatens to spill the beans. Someone tells Kelly. Kelly goes to the Cocoanut Bar. With two strong-arm men. Why? To silence a squealer. That was around eight o'clock, and, at ten-thirty, the squealer didn't squeal. Why? Because Kelly had something on him."

Barry was on his feet, too, now.

"Something in writing," he said.

"Sure! The paper he accused Peggy Rogers of trying to steal."

"Yes," Barry went on, "and get this: somebody did try. Violet Fane, probably. Peggy Rogers says Violet had just left the table when the row started. And that Luis was talking to Vi, outside the dressing rooms, just before that.

"—What did he say? He said, 'I'll send this dame to jail, and you to the hot spot.' And you can't send a man to the electric chair for picking pockets."

"No."

"But you might, if you knew of something else he'd done, and had the proof of it. There was a paper, and it had disappeared when the body was found. Who got it? Morano. And not in the Cocoanut Bar, because it was still in Kelly's pocket at midnight."

Harwood laid down his pipe.

"How do you know that?"

"Somebody told me."

"Jack Rogers?"

"No."

Harwood's eyes narrowed.

"Was it Judge Hambidge?"

Barry didn't answer.

"If Winslow's shielding anyone it's Judge Hambidge," Harwood said. "Judge Hambidge, or someone close to him. I've been thinking that ever since you put the idea in my head. The judge has always been a straight shooter. Why did he write that decision? Was that paper a threat to him, too?"

Barry said, "I don't know."

"I don't either. But I'm going to find out before Saturday."

"Can I help?"

Ernie looked at him.

"No," he replied, curtly. "For the present, I want you to keep out of this."

The Junior League

The Junior league originated among a small group of young women in New York city who in 1900 sent a large number of roses from a party to a hospital. Later they and others banded together "for mutual benefit and the good of the community." From giving entertainments for the benefit of a college settlement they extended their activities to many other forms of social aid. Similar organizations of young women were formed in other cities out of which grew a national association of leagues, each interested in its particular ways in the educational, cultural and civic conditions of its community and in volunteer charitable and other service.

The Truth About Golf

There has been so much mystery, bunk and high-pressure salesmanship surrounding golf that many a would-be golfer has hesitated to take it up, and many who have taken lessons have soon struck snags which have hindered their pleasure in the game. It is true that golf is a game you cannot learn by yourself, because there is no such thing as a "born" or "natural" golf swing. But there is so much health and pure enjoyment to be had out of fairly well-played golf that it is worth while making the few sacrifices the game demands.

There are some things the human being does naturally, such as walking, running, striking with the right hand, throwing or catching a ball. Other things, like the golf swing, are unnatural; therefore the muscles must be trained and set in those unnatural channels. Golf players call it "grooving a swing". And there are simply no short cuts o it. Only one thing will "groove" a muscle so that it performs an unnatural action naturally, and that is practice, practice and more practice.

The whole hubbub about golf revolves around the fact that human beings are lazy They don't want to work for their fun, and practice is work. They are forever looking for short cuts, or easy ways to learn. .. .—Paul Gallico in Cosmopolitan.

BIOGRAPHER OF KNOX GIVES SOME "INSIDE"

By J. W. MARCHBANK
Pioneer in Frontier Mining Work

It's pretty tiresome seeing displayed day after day in the anti-Roosevelt press—and it's estimated about eighty per cent of the papers of the country are in that category—in the largest kind of type fairy tales about freedom of opportunity. Nothng whatever is said of the manner in which such vaunted "freedom" is cramped by the few men in virtual control of the economic destinies of the nation.

An especially noteworthy example of such prevalent cramping is furnished in the case of Frank Knox, Chicago publisher and running mate of the "inarticulate" Alf. Landon on the Republican ticket.

It looks as though the financial oligarchy is the kind of octopus with tentacles expanding from coast to coast that are put in use whenever anything of importance to the welfare of any particular community is on.

"Frank Knox—American" was a book that appeared in the pre-convention campaign. It was written by Norman Beasley and seems to be an official biography, as it was released in short instalments by organizations supporting the former Hearst general manager for the nomination of president.

After retiring from the Hearst service, Knox wanted a paper of his own, but according to the account given by his own biographer it was not possible for him to take over the Chicago Daily News until he was "passed on" by representatives of the financial oligarchy.

* * *

Incidentally the Knox biographer expresses the opinion the experience of his hero in the Hearst organization was valuable training for any position in the country, public or private. As to this, the book says:

"Measured in dollars, the business of not more than a half-dozen state governments in the Union is larger in volume than the Hearst newspaper enterprises. The gross revenues of the Hearst chain exceed one hundred millions a year and in normal years they are much higher.

"The general managership of this vast empire, therefore, demands the highest kind of executive ability. Not more than a dozen governmental offices in the nation have duties and responsibilities as exacting and complex."

* * *

Among the Chicago business men who conducted the scrutiny of Colonel Knox prior his taking over the reins of the paper were S. L. Avery, president of Montgomery Ward and Company; George E. Scott, president of American Steel Foundries; and John Stuart, president of the Quaker Oats Company. Avery, as a director of the Chicago News Company, was active and went to New York to ask the heads of the various press associations what they thought of Knox. Their recommendation was unqualified, as was that of such newspaper magnates as the late A. S. Ochs, of the New York Times; Charles Taylor, of the Boston Globe; and Harry Chandler, of the Los Angeles Times.

It is worth mentioning, as pointed out by the nationally known commentator Heywood Broun and others, that Colonel Knox was nominated for the Vice-Presidency of the United States through Hearst, Chandler, Montgomery Ward, Steel Foundries, and other forces which picked him as publisher of a metroplitan journal.

* * *

One of the latest additions to the Landon "brain trust" is E. Ross Hartley, former secretary to Charles G. Dawes. Hartley is expected to serve as Landon's press-contact man. Dawes is the man who put Colonel Kox in touch with the Chicago business men who finally approved him as publisher of the Chicago Daily News.

DALY CITY SCORES ONE MORE WIN IN STATE LEAGUE CONTEST

In a loose contest at San Mateo, last Sunday, Daly City Tanforans came out on the long end of a 10 to 9 score over the Orinda Reds, although out hit, 12 to 9.

Although the play was brilliant at times, on the whole it was sloppy and apathetic and devoid of snap. The big blow off came in the third inning when Daly City ganged up on the opposing pitcher and scored six runs. Jacobson dew a base on balls, as did Volkman. Burke slashed out a base knock and Jacobson and Volkman crossed the plate. Vasquez was safe on an error by the pitcher in handling a ground ball. Palmini scored both with a two base blow. Goldstein was walked. Both runners advanced on Sturtevant's infield out and crossed the rubber on a hit by Calegari. Kirby got a single, but was thrown out trying to stretch it. Six runs scored on four hits.

Kirby got a three bagger in the fifth, scoring Sturtevant, who had singled. Kirby scored on a hit by Jacobson, who tallied when Volkman reached first on an error of his infield grounder.

The Reds kept pecking away until they had scored nine runs, but were unable to put over any more in the clutch.

LOUIS BELOTTI OPENS CAMPAIGN

LOUIS BELOTTI

A. Louis Belotti of Atherton, a candidate for supervisor from the Third District, San Mateo County, has opened his campaign for election to the board.

Mr. Belotti is 42 years of age and has lived in California for seventeen years. He became candidate for supervisor at the insistence of his many friends and responsible citizens of the county. He is a business man and agriculturist.

He was educated and trained in engineering, law and business administration. After leaving the naval service at the end of the World War, he entered business for himself in the agricultural field, in which he is still engaged with excellent success.

He favors a rapid transit system for San Mateo County in order to be able to compete with the Bay Districts after the completion of the bridges. This rapid transit system, he feels, should be based upon the needs of the community and developed upon a sound financial basis.

He favors the development of the waterfront industrially for the purpose of increasing pay rolls. This will greatly enhance property values and, at the same time, reduce taxes by bringing more idle property into use.

He favors adequate care for the old, for the infirm and for those in need who are citizens of the county. However, he feels that this situation should be handled in an economic and efficient manner. As to relief for transients, Mr. Belotti feels that on the federal government rests the responsibility for their cars.

Mr. Belotti states that he is absolutely independent and that he is not allied with any group or organization and that, if he is honored by being elected to the board, he assures the people of San Mateo County that he will, at all times, fight for the best interests of all the people even though he stands alone. He states that he will give the people an economic, honest and business-like administration, applying to the county government the same modern principles of business and finance which he applies to his own affairs, to the end that extravagance may be elminated and the tax burden reduced.

The voters of the county have no guide to indicate what they may expect in the future, other than the experience of the past, and Mr. Belotti's record as an upstanding, courageous citizen is the best evidence of what may be expected of him as a supervisor.

DOUBLE BIRTHDAY ENTERTAINS GROUP

Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Koch of Templeton avenue were hosts to a group of friends, Saturday evening of last week, celebrating the birthdays of Mrs. Addie Rapaeyea and Mr. W. C. Koch.

Dancing was enjoyed during the evening, with plenty of refreshments and a midnight buffet supper.

The distinguished guests were Misses Honey and Bobbie Walden, Ralph Croner of the U. S. S. Cincinnati, Joseph Garcia, Mrs. L. Feliz, Arthur St. Charles, Mr. and Mrs. A. Carlson, Mr. and Mrs. R. Rapaeyea of Sebastopol and Harold Baum.

GROUP ENJOYED SWIMMING PARTY

A large group of friends motored to Sutro Baths, Friday evening of last week, where they spent a delightful evening swimming.

Those in the group were Mr. and Mrs. Bob Lynch, Mr. and Mrs. Buster Beecher, Mr. and Mrs. Bruno Conci, Mr. and Mrs. Gus Ford and daughter Barbara, Mr. and Mrs. Roy Beecher, Mrs. Ida Beecher, Mrs. Ruth Tiederman, Misses Dot and Eileen Beecher, Miss Juanita Dunstan, Miss Rita Chicca, Milton McKay and Buster Dunstan.

HUMAN COMEDY AT GEARY THEATER

To the Geary Theater on Monday, July 13, will come, fresh from its Broadway triumph, "Russet Mantle," the Lynn Riggs warmly human comedy that wends its way to San Francisco direct from the Masque Theater, New York City, where it had its amazing premiere last January, but the engagement at the Geary will be the only engagement played in Northern California. The author, Mr. Riggs, is not alone one of America's greatest dramatics and author of such enormously successful plays as "Green Grow the Lilacs," "Rancour," "The Cherokee Night" and "The Sun of Perdition," but when he wrote "Russet Mantle" he came very near to winning the much-sought Pulitzer Prize. In fact, it is said that "Russet Mantle" was the second selection for the award. That it is a most interesting treatise on young love, its pitfalls and its radical, protest against traditions, place it high up in the list of stage plays that you must see. What's more, its daring subject may bar it from the cinema entirely. Therefore, it were best if you would hurry to the Geary box office, or send in your order for seats by mail, because the engagement is limited to two weeks only and you cannot well afford to miss this most unusual play. The cast has had glowing tributes; in fact, Martha Sleeper is said to have reached the road that leads to ultimate stardom through her striking part in this play. Taylor Holmes, as her uncle with an academic view of love, and Evelyn Varden, as her aunt, are said to have the best roles of their careers. The cast also includes Hardie Albright, as the itinerant boy who finds himself the object of Miss Sleeper's audacious affections; Cora Witherspoon, well-known stage and screen player; Maurice Black, who was a bright spot in "Broadway" and who soared to cinema fame as Little Arnie in "Little Caesar;" James Larmore as Scoot, and others equally as well known. The complete New York production will be seen at the Geary, where the advance sale indicates a most prosperous engagement. There will be a special popular-priced one dollar-top matinee on Wednesday.

LESSON SERMON OF CHRISTIAN SCIENCE

In all Christian Science Churches, branches of The Mother Church, The First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, Mass., a Lesson-Sermon will be read Sunday, July 12, on the subject "Sacrament."

The Golden Text will be: "To do good and to communicate forget not: for with such sacrifices God is well pleased" (Heb. 13: 16). Bible selections will include the following passage from Luke 22: 14, 17, 19: "And when the hour was come, he sat down, and the twelve apostles with him. . . . And he took the cup, and gave thanks, and said, Take this, and divide it among yourselves: . . . . And he took bread, and gave thanks, and brake it, and gave unto them, saying, This is my body which is given for you: this do in remembrance of me."

A passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy, will also be included, which reads as follows: "We worship spiritually, only as we cease to worship materially. Spiritual devoutness is the soul of Christianity. Worshipping through the medium of matter is paganism" (p. 140).

Lysle Prince Sole Owner of Used Car Business And Super Service Station at 6601 Mission Street

Lysle Prince, who has been associated with Pat King and Pat King Used Cars, has purchased the entire interest at 6601 Mission street and will conduct a high grade used car place in connection with the new super service station. Mr. Prince has made hundreds of friends since he has been in business in Daly City by his honest and fair dealings to the public. He has been in the automobile business for about eighteen years, having been a Ford dealer and for the last several years an employe of the General Motors factory sales division; he is well known on automobile row, and all of the dealers speak of him as a high class, well informed, honest dealer to do business with.

Mr. Prince states he conducts his own service and repair department and paint shop in addition to new and used cars and radio sales. Mr. Harry Plummer is the shop manager, Mr. Paul Goodwin is the painter and the super service gas and oil business is conducted by Mr. Morris Rosenberg and Mr. Bill Prince.

Mr. Prince says that by having his own shop for repairs, car washing, greasing and painting, which is done by his employes who are experts, he is able to keep his prices down and give the public the benefit of better cars at cheaper prices. He also says he has no fly-by-night organization, as he has a five year lease on his place of business and will be conducted in a manner that wlil build good will for his customers and himself.

We welcome Lysle Prince again for believing in Daly City and making the large investment he has here and we are sure he will be just as successful here as he has been in his past endeavors. We say more power to you, Lysle. You have an up-to-date of business and we know you will conduct it properly.

Dolls dressed in historical costumes of all the world may be seen at the San Diego Exposition in an exhibit of the State Historical Association.

RESOLUTION BY COUNTY CLUBS

Commend Supervisors, Press And Civic Organizations For Assistance.

The following resolution has been adopted with reference to efforts in behalf of an efficient rapid transit "tie-in" for San Mateo County:

Whereas, Rapid Transit on a basis of parity with all sections of the San Francisco Bay Area is of paramount importance and necessary to San Mateo County; and

Whereas, adequate and proper service to terminals in down-town San Francisco is of vital importance to the continued growth and prosperity of San Mateo County, and for the greater comfort and convenience of its commuter population; now, therefore,

Be it resolved, that the Federation of Improvement Clubs and Associations of San Mateo County approve of and commend the strenuous efforts being put forth by our Honorable Board of Supervisors, Planning Commission, and other public officials and civic organizations, to insure a proper and adequate "tie-in" of San Mateo County to the proposed San Francisco Bridge Terminal and Rapid Transit System, and that such efforts be continued.

Be it further resolved, that a vote of thanks be extended to the press for its generous sponsoring of these matters so vital to San Mateo County, and that a copy of this resolution be sent to the Board of Supervsors of San Francisco and San Mateo Counties Planning Commission and press of San Francisco and San Mateo Counties.

At Least Tolerate Your Neighbor

Make up your mind that it is senseless to quarrel.

You will meet many people that you dislike.

Many of them will be quarrelsome, conceited, ill tempered. Avoid such people, but tolerate them. They may turn out to be better than you think they are.

There is plenty of room on this earth for human beings of all sorts and kind.

Some of them will differ with you in politics, others in religion.

Some may be downright ugly.

But they are as they are made. Quarreling with them will make you unhappy, and you're going to need all the happiness you can find as you travel through life.

• • •

Some of them may be snobbish and "high hat". You can easily keep away from that sort.

But you will be thrown in with certain people whom you cannot avoid.

They may live next door to you, they may belong to the same church or club, they may intrude themselves upon you in many unpleasant ways.

It will do you no good to "get your back up" when they are around.

You will get only misery out of quarreling with them.

Just convince yourself that there must be that kind of people in the world with you, and that the easiest way is to be as cheerful as possible in their presence, eschew arguments with them, and let them go their own way.

• • •

You can kill mosquitoes and spiders and rattlesnakes and other creatures with which you may be thrown as you go on.

You can't kill human beings without getting into serious trouble. I do not contend that you ought to nurse odious people in your bosom, or try to reform them.

All I suggest is that if you must be with them you will not be unhappy about it, but get along as well you can.

And now and then you are pretty sure to find that somebody you thought was a pest was a really good sort when you came to know him well, and that you lost a good deal by not getting better acquainted with him.

• • •

Dislike reacts on the person who harbors it. Better figure that wherever you go you will find men and women who are constant irritations to you.

Leave them alone if you can. If you can't, just be civil and pleasant and if they resent that keep out of their neighborhood.

The chief end of man I honestly believe is happiness.

You can't be happy when you are hating other people.

But toleration will put it out of their power to annoy you.

Try this plan for a couple of weeks. I think you will profit by it.

Household Questions

Air the bread and cake boxes frequently during the summer months. Mould is likely to form on breads and cakes kept in boxes during the warm weather.

• • •

Chamois wet in cold water and wrung dry will polish mahogany furniture that has become cloudy.

• • •

Do not remove husks from green corn until just before putting on to boil. Corn spoils quickly, so it should be used as soon as possible after purchasing.

• • •

When cake or bread is too brown or is burned, grate gently with a fine grater (nutmeg grater preferred) until the cake or bread is a golden brown.

• • •

A little garlic rubbed over the broiler on which steak is broiled gives steak a delicious flavor.

• • •

Always strain hot fat used for deep frying through a piece of cheese cloth each time it is used and set in a cool place. Treated in this way fat may be used many times.

• • •

Sandwiches may be kept moist for 24 hours if they are wrapped tight as soon as made, in waxed paper, then placed in a box lined with a damp cloth and covered with a cloth. Keep in a cool place.

• • •

Mayonnaise may be kept for several weeks in refrigerator if a tablespoonful of boiling water is added to it before bottling.

• • •

Never put hot foods in your refrigerator or ice box. Wait until they have cooled.

• • •

Mix salads with a fork instead of a spoon or ladle.

That's a Peptimist

A Pessimist closes an eye, wrinkles his face, draws up the corners of his mouth, and says, "It can't be done."

An Optimist has a face full of sunshine. He beams on you and says, "It can be done"—and then lets Joe "do it."

But a Pep-ti-mist takes off his coat, rolls up his sleeves, and goes to it, and does it.

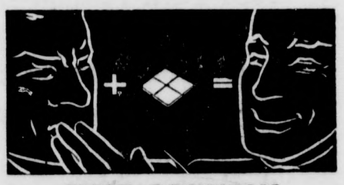
The successful person is a healthy person. Don't let yourself be handicapped by sick headaches, a sluggish condition, stomach "nerves" and other dangerous signs of over-acidity.

TAKE MILNESIAS

Milnesia, the original milk of magnesia in wafer form, neutralizes stomach acid. Each wafer equals 4 teaspoonfuls of milk of magnesia. Thin, crunchy, mint-flavor, tasty. 20c, 35c & 60c at drug stores.

HEARTBURN?

Its surprising how many have heart burn. Hurried eating, overeating, heavy smoking, excessive drinking all lead to heartburn. When it comes, heed the warning. Your stomach is on a strike.



SLEEP SOUNDLY

Lack of exercise and injudicious eating make stomachs acid. You must neutralize stomach acids if you would sleep soundly all night and wake up feeling refreshed and really fit.

SILVER RAFFLE FOR VETERANS WILL END SOON

American Legion Will Conduct Affair In Unique Manner At Hall

The V. F. W. and American Legion of Daly City held a picnic committee meeting, Monday evening of this week at the home of Fred Collins. This picnic will be held jointly by the V. F. W. and American Legion Posts of Daly City, Sunday, July 26, at Vallemar Park. There will be plenty of free coffee and free dancing from one to six o'clock in the afternoon, with good music. Children under 15 will be admitted free and be given a ticket on entering, which will entitle them to free ice cream.

There will be baseball games and racing contests. This will be the Third Annual Joint War Veterans Picnic of Daly City and will be bigger and better than ever.

We are now on the last lap of our silver set raffle and it sure looks like a big success, thanks to the co-operation of all members of American Legion Post No. 410 of Daly City. We will have a dance at our hall, 474 San Diego avenue, the night of the drawing, Saturday, July 25.

For the benefit of the ones who have not been informed, the drawing will not be from a ballot box. Instead. Comrade Jakobsen has made up four spindle wheels. These wheels will be spun together and where they stop will be the winning number, reading from left to right.

Many of the nation's leading symphony orchestras will make frequent appearances at the San Diego Exposition this summer.

THE SAN MATEO COUNTY COUNCIL

The San Mateo County Council of the American Legion Auxiliary met in Daly City Legion Hall on Tuesday evening. Many are away on vacation, so the attendance was small.

Plans were made for representation at the coming state convention in Hollywood in August.

We are glad to hear that Mrs. Beatrice Camgros, an officer in the Council and a member of the drill team, who has been very ill, is on the road to recovery.

The drill team will be busy this month installing the officers of the various units.

The next meeting will be held in Burlingame after the convention.

CYPRESS CIRCLE HOLDS INITIATION

A class of candidates were initiated at the regular meeting of Cypress Circle No. 14, U. A. O. D., Wednesday evening of this week. Followng the ceremony and the conduction of regular business, members enjoyed a delightful repast prepared and served by members of the refreshment committee, Mary May, Helen McEntee and Margaret McDermett. The new members are Eleanor P. Gaggoro, Mary Adele Rasler, and Valerie Naomi Macensey.

Co-Operation And Success

Noticeable improvement has been noted in Daly City in the past few months. Our citizens are now co-operating—not only with our new city administration, but with each other.

When confidence is once restored in our city officials, the people of the community appear to take new heart and are willing to spend money on betterments and improvements. New buildings are being constructed and others remodeled on account of this restored confidence. Many merchants are increasing their stocks and remodeling their stores in order to take care of their growing and ever increasing business.

The citizens of any community are always quick to respond to the efforts of their officials to give them an honest, clean and economic government in city affairs.

With continued co-operation of both officials and citizens, our own Daly City is destined to move forward to a high place among municipalities of the state.

Keep the ball rolling and help build your town to its rightful place in the sun of a new prosperity.

Nothing succeeds like success!

LOCAL GIRL BRIDE AT HOME CEREMONY

At a very lovely home wedding, last Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock, Miss Evelyn McKee, formerly of Irvington street, became the bride of Harold Sellers of Hamilton Naval Base. The ceremony took place in the living room of the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles McKee Sr. on McCrae avenue. Rev. L. H. Randle officiated.

The bride wore a white satin ensemble and hat with corsage of talisman roses. The attendants were Mr. and Mrs. Charles McKee Jr., brother and sister in law of the bride. The bride's mother was charming in a dark blue lace gown with a corsage of pink sweet peas.

A wedding breakfast was served following the ceremony. On return from their wedding trip, the young couple will make their home in San Rafael, where Mrs. Sellers is employed. The groom is in charge of the commissary warehouse at Hamilton Field.

The McKee family have made their home in San Rafael for the past two years. The young couple have a host of friends in Daly City who wish them many years of happiness.
